"She described interviewing the head of the Red Crescent in Gaza, mentioning "reports of shootings of Palestinian children at times when there were no clashes' going on — a solitary 6-year-old entering his schoolyard in the morning with his book-bag on his back. The soldiers abducted the wounded child at gunpoint, then his body would be returned a few days later having undergone an 'autopsy at Abu Kabir Hospital.' She asked the director 'if he had considered the possibility that these killings were being done for organ transplant, since . . . it is not allowed to take Jewish organs to save a Jewish life, but it is allowed to take the organs of non-Jews to save Jewish lives.' "

JD: It is often medically necessary to cut out the organs while their victims are still alive. Please forward this ghastly report, because publicity can save the lives of future would-be victims.
